

We have participated in the Indiana Privacy program since it first became available. Telephone privacy is important to my wife and to me. Prior to the Indiana Privacy Act we subscribed to a service called "Privacy Manager, through Ameritech to reduce the number of telephone solicitation calls we received. Telephone solicitors could pass calls through the service simply by stating a name at the proper time.

The Indiana Privacy program has been so effective that we no longer have added expense of the telephone company service.

The Indiana Privacy Act has survived legal challenges by telephone solicitors.

I am concerned that the FCC may provide the opportunity for the solicitors to realize a goal that they failed to accomplish through the courts, specifically an attempt to diminish the Indiana Law.

I ask that the FCC take no action that will reduce the effectiveness of the Indiana Privacy Act. We are currently able to enjoy meals and evenings without interruptions from the unwanted intrusions of telephone solitors.

I appreciate the opportunity to provide comment via the internet.

My compliments to you for making this process simple and easy.
